Academic Advising & Tracking

The Office of Undergraduæts Studies (UGS) continued expanding its partnerships across USF as well as with other institutions in 2015-2016 to enhance student success through the Office for Academic Advising Initiatives (OAAI). Building on related efforts in UGS during the last elegant the office was created through integration of the academic tracking and advising functions, the Office of Academic Advocacy, and a renewed focus on enhancing stantel community college relations.

In the area of academic tracking and advising,rpgress was madein a number of key areas including receipt of an iPASS grant from the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation for $225,000 across three years. The iPASS (Integrated Planning & Advising for Student Success) grant is focused on enhancing educational planning, counseling/coaching, and targeting risk/intervention and will allow USF to further build on recent prior efforts to develop an effective academic planning/tracking system as well as to integrate predictive analytics. Key areas of additional pr

- x STEM Tutoring –Student visitors to the tutoring areas supporting Calculusand Physics have again increased significantly this year by 31% as compared to the same time last year. While additional tutors were added to these areas, due to space constraints, the areas are routinely overextended (too many students per tutor and insufficient space) causing students to leave without services.
- x Tutor Training We have now completed our first year as a fully CRLA certified Tutor0.4(6o)98 re

- Sessions and 4 other institutions, including Hofstra and Dartmouth, are working with our staff to offer a similar approach on their campuses.
- f Compression Sessions This new option affords more opportunities for students to "walk-in" for quick feedback questions. If more time is needed students are encouraged to make an appointment. Compression sessions are offered daily at different times each day.
- f Imbedded Tutoring Certain USF writingintensive classes participate in embedded tutoring. This program allots one writing consultant per class, who
